button in the upper left corner of the desktop and select Activate Windows. A: I wouldn't recommend grabbing the ISO's, and by using the Builder, you're going to experience a long download process. I'd suggest starting with updating to the Windows XP SP3 Developer Preview, and then installing the Windows XP Mode (you'll have to do a fresh install, and you can't use the ISO). Once you have the Windows XP Mode installed, you can install the Virtual PC extension, and then install Windows 7 Enterprise edition. I'd also suggest doing a Clean Install. There are lots of programs and drivers out there that aren't compatible with Windows 7. I'd suggest uninstalling, and then doing a re-install. Of course, depending on the hardware you have, you can get pretty much any version of Windows 7 (including the Home version). And lastly, I would suggest NOT downloading the Windows 8.1 ISO's. I'd suggest using the Windows 7 ISO's. Q: Using BeautifulSoup to Extract Data from a Responsive Web Site I want to scrape information from this web page, but I'm having trouble scraping the information (whether it's the text, price, or a drop down list). The problem is that, depending on the screen size, the page will either load or none of the page will load. In my code I'm trying to access the text in this tag: Cream which seems to be the category name, but it's only available when the
